

Proper Window Installation and Flashing Techniques

Tuesday, March 21, 2006

11:00 AM until 2:00 PM

Williamsburg Quarterpath Park Recreation Center

202 Quarterpath Road, Williamsburg, VA.

Sponsored by : City of Williamsburg Codes Compliance Division
Virginia Building and Code Officials Association, Region 8
PPW/DuPont

Window and door leaks account for a high percentage of all callbacks and can be a major contributor to mold and mildew problems in both residential and commercial buildings. For building professionals, architects, code officials and other industry professionals, this course can lead to better detailing and execution of window installation and help to reduce liability and save money on callbacks.

The instructor for the program will be Brent Rice. He is an accredited Installation Masters Instructor for window installation through Architectural Testing Inc. and the Installation Masters Institute. He has recently worked as an architectural specialist for a national window manufacturer. Mr. Rice has also spent numerous years in the field as a window installer, remodeler and service professional for a "top 100" national homebuilder. Currently, Mr. Rice is employed as a DuPont Tyvek® Certified Specialist to the construction industry. His training includes such areas as water and moisture management, flashings and weatherization of wall systems. The program will include:

- Review proper flashing details for multiple window and door installations
- Review several details both correct and incorrect through slides and jobsite photos
- Review types, styles and properties of different flashing materials
- Properly install and flash a window with audience participation
- Answer questions about flashings and installation
